My Life in Miniature (Ages 15 and up)

Instructor: Stephen Hayford

6 Tuesdays 6:00 PM – 8:00 PM

Session 1: February 16 – March 23; $95/$115

Session 2: May 18 – June 22; $95/$115

Miniatures, from train sets to dollhouses, have long captivated the imaginations of people of all ages. So, why is that most people haven't made a diorama since elementary school? Well, now it's time to release your inner child and create scaled miniatures in rich detail. Recreate elements from your own life: your home, room, garden, office, etc. Or create scenes from your imagination for display or as sets for films (see the companion class "Stop Motion and Puppetry"). Learn to see textures and elements for miniatures in everyday items. Focus on 1:18 scale.

Award-winning photojournalist Stephen Hayford has been documenting community issues since the beginning of his career nearly 20 years ago. He attained his education at the University of Missouri-Columbia where, aside from majoring in photojournalism, he also focused his study in psychology and sociology to better aid his journalistic work. Stephen has worked with the Palm Beach Post, Sun-Sentinel, Miami Herald, Rocky Mountain News and other newspapers and wire services in Colorado, Ohio, Missouri and Florida. He became well-versed in Southwest Florida issues covering the area for nine years with The News-Press. His work is noted for his versatility with great attention to light, detail, decisive moments and compositional storytelling. Stephen is also a versatile writer who works in public relations and product development.
